

Dutch scale up Tony's Choclonely grew out of a journalist's exposé of child slave labor in the cocoa industry and his dream of making the chocolate trade slavery-free. The Amsterdam-based company grew quickly, but its original collaboration apps didn't support its international expansion or its work-life balance ideals. Tony's Choclonely found the best way for employees to work together, thanks to Microsoft Teams with Vodafone Calling in Microsoft Office 365. For the Tony's team, its suppliers, and its "chocofans" and West African partners, it's all about building real and transparent relationships.

"Using Teams with Vodafone Calling in Office 365 amplifies the personal and transparent approach we're known for. We can talk to our chocofans with full knowledge of their prior backgrounds, orders, and feedback."

"We've implemented the entire Office 365 suite. All of our data is on SharePoint. With this modern working platform, we can easily collaborate with all of our partners and suppliers, and with each other."
